

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

CONSTITUTION
MASSACHUSETTS SOCIETY OF THE SONS OF
THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION

As Amended April 19, 1904

ARTICLE I

NAME

The name of the Society shall be THE MASSACHUSETTS SOCIETY OF THE SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION.

ARTICLE II

OBJECTS

The objects of the Society are: to perpetuate the memory and spirit of the men who achieved American Independence, by the encouragement of historical research in relation to the Revolution and the publication of its results, the preservation of documents and relics, and of the records of the individual services of Revolutionary soldiers and patriots, and the promotion of celebrations of all patriotic anniversaries; to carry out the injunction of Washington in his Farewell Address to the American people, "to promote, as an object of primary importance, institutions for the general diffusion of knowledge," thus developing an enlightened public opinion, and affording to young and old such advantages as shall develop in them the largest capacity for performing the duties of American citizens; to cherish, maintain, and extend the institutions of American freedom; to foster true patriotism and love of country; and to aid in securing for mankind all the blessings of liberty.

ARTICLE III

MEMBERSHIP

Any man is eligible for membership who is of the age of twenty-one years, and who is descended from an ancestor who, with unflinching loyalty, rendered material aid to the cause of American Independence, as a soldier or as a seaman, or a *civil officer in one of the several Colonies or States, or of the United Colonies or States, as a recognized patriot; provided that he shall be found worthy.

ARTICLE IV

OFFICERS

The officers of the Society shall be a President, three Vice-Presidents, a Secretary, a Treasurer, a Registrar, a Historian, a Chaplain, and a Board of Managers, consisting of fifteen members and the officers of the Society ex officio. The offices of Secretary and Registrar may be held by one person. The Society or Managers shall also elect a Delegate-at-large, and such other Delegates as it may be entitled to by the Constitution of the National Society.

ARTICLE V

LOCAL ORGANIZATIONS

Ten or more members of the Society, resident in any locality as may be approved by the Board of Managers, may form themselves into a Chapter, to be called by such name as said members may assume. A Charter may be granted to such Chapter by the Board of Managers, upon application in writing of ten or more members of the Society, stating name to be assumed, the location, and names of its proposed members. Such Chapter may enact a Constitution and By-laws not inconsistent with those of the National Society, or of this Society.

* The Constitution of the National Society omits the words "civil officer" as a basis for eligibility.

No person shall be admitted to such Chapter unless he is a member in good standing of THE MASSACHUSETTS SOCIETY OF THE SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION; and all members of this Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, resident within the territory of such Chapter, shall be eligible to membership therein. If any member of such Chapter should cease to be a member of the State Society, his membership in the Chapter shall also cease.

Membership in Chapters shall not in any way change the relations of members to the State Society, nor impair obligations of payment of dues and other requisitions of the Constitution and By-laws of said Society. Provided, however, that the Board of Managers may from time to time, by vote, authorize the return to designated Chapters, or classes of Chapters, of a portion of the annual dues paid the Society by members of said Chapters.

Every Chapter shall annually report a list of officers and members to the Secretary of the State Society on the first of April.

ARTICLE VI

QUORUM

A quorum of the Society for the transaction of business shall consist of forty members; of the Managers, five members; but a less number may adjourn.

ARTICLE VII

AMENDMENTS

This Constitution or the By-laws may be altered or amended at any meeting of the Society, by a vote of three-fourths of the members present; provided that notice of such intended alteration or amendment be borne on the notification of said meeting.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE SOCIETY AND BOARD OF MANAGERS

APRIL 19, 1904—APRIL 19, 1907

At the Annual Meeting of the Society held April 19th, 1904, the following resolution, offered by Mr. Frank E. Woodward, was unanimously adopted:—

Whereas within the files of the Pension Bureau at Washington are accumulated valuable papers relating to 62,075 pensioners of the War of the Revolution, and whereas these papers contain genealogical and historical material which should be preserved in printed form and be readily accessible to the public,

Therefore: Be it Resolved by the National Congress of the Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, that the President-General and the Secretary-General of the Society are hereby instructed to communicate to the Secretary of the Interior and to the Chairman of the Committees of Appropriation of both Houses of Congress, a respectful request from this Congress that estimates be prepared and a Congressional appropriation be made of a sum sufficient to provide for the clerical labor of compiling within three years, under the direction of the Commissioner of Pensions, an alphabetically arranged roll of pensioners of the War of the Revolution intended as manuscript for the Public Printer, the said roll to exhibit in condensed form information found in the papers of each pensioner giving the dates of service in each military or naval organization, the place of enlistment and subsequent residence of the pensioner; birth place and dates of birth and death of pensioner; dates of marriages and names of wives; names and ages of children, with a brief summary of any special military services rendered by the pensioner and described in sworn application papers.

General Francis H. Appleton was requested to offer the resolution at the Congress of the National Society.

Among the delegates elected, the following named attended the Congress of the National Society held in St. Louis, June 15-16, 1904: General Francis H. Appleton, Nathan Warren, Delegate-at-Large, George B. Robbins, Philip T. Nickerson, Samuel M. Boardman, John K. Marshall and William W. Young.

Walter S. Fox was presented with the insignia badge of the Society in recognition of his faithful services as Secretary.

Managers' Meeting, May 13, 1904. Dr. Moses Greeley Parker was elected to represent the Society on the Advisory Committee on Coöperation in Patriotic Work.

June 10, 1904. Voted to rebate to each member of George Washington Chapter, of Springfield, one dollar of his annual dues for 1904.

FIELD DAY AT SPRINGFIELD, OCTOBER 4, 1904

Under the auspices of George Washington Chapter, of Springfield, the Field Day for 1904 was made the occasion for dedicating a tablet placed by the Chapter on the West Springfield Common to mark the spot where the captured Hessians of General Burgoyne's army encamped October 30, 1777, while they were on their march to Boston after the British were defeated at Saratoga, N. Y.

Members of the Society with ladies from the eastern part of the state arrived in Springfield about eleven o'clock and were met at the station by a committee from the George Washington Chapter and escorted to special cars which conveyed the party to West Springfield Common. The exercises were opened promptly at 11.30 o'clock by an invocation by Rev. Newton M. Hall, Chaplain of George Washington Chapter. The introductory address was then made by George D. Chamberlain, President of George Washington Chapter, who spoke in part as follows: "It was one hundred and twenty-seven years ago this month that there occurred what long ago was acknowledged to be one of the most important events in connection with the Revolutionary War. It was in June of that same year that Burgoyne, addressing his army, said, 'This army must not retreat,' but within four short months he exercised a woman's privilege and changed his mind. If ever a nation had reason to feel proud of her soldiers, surely it was the infant nation in that year 1777. And so we have met here today to commemorate an event full of significance to this nation, and as a society we take great pride in placing on this historic spot another beacon light of history, and we will not doubt that in the years to come it will serve as a torch to kindle a fire of patriotism and devotion in the hearts of future generations."

At the close of President Chamberlain's introductory address, Representative Luke S. Stowe of Springfield presented the bowlder and tablet to the town with the following words: "We have assembled here today to dedicate a tablet which will mark the spot where an invading and defeated army one hundred and twenty-seven years ago encamped. By so doing we honor our Revolutionary soldiers, for, through their patriotism, bravery and sacrifice this spot was made historic. Every great struggle which has aimed to obtain liberty, justice and truth, has called for and demanded such men as our Revolutionary fathers. Every crisis that has raised a front so terrible and threatening that only the best and bravest could hope to win, they fully met. Out across the vast and never-ending plains of human sacrifice the marks that will be visible as long as men come this way are the footprints of our Revolutionary fathers. An imperishable monument to liberty and justice is built upon their bones. Well may this tablet stand as one of many marks in this country of ours, of which the old Bay State leads all others. It should ever remind us and future generations of that great struggle and sacrifice made for our national independence. Therefore we unveil and dedicate this tablet in loving memory and gratitude to our Revolutionary soldiers. It now becomes my pleasant duty, in behalf of George Washington Chapter, to present through the authorized authorities of this town this monument to the town of West Springfield for their care and keeping, hoping that this tablet will be as lasting and enduring as the granite boulder upon which it is placed."

As Representative Stowe concluded his address a large American flag, which hid the tablet from view, was slowly raised by Winifred and Pauline Mead, two youthful great-great-granddaughters of John Baker, one of the Hessian soldiers who pitched his tent on the West Springfield Common one hundred and twenty-seven years ago. The flag was slowly raised to the top of a tall staff, and as it fluttered out into the breezes, the children from the Park and Main Street schools sang "The Star Spangled Banner," while the spectators stood with their heads bared.

The gift of the boulder and tablet to the town was accepted by Park Commissioner Horace Warriner. The address of the day was given by Congressman F. H. Gillett, and his inspiring, appropriate words were heartily applauded. His address was as follows: "The action of the Sons of the American Revolution in marking this historic spot is worthy of all commendation and encouragement. Our country is so new that its monuments and points of traditional interest are few. One of the great attractions of Europe is that there we find not simply beauty of scenery and of architecture, but old historical associations, which kindle the imagination and excite the memory and add great interest and instruction to travel. Thus far our country has lacked such attractions, but as our age increases and as such patriotic action as this today increases, we, too, shall gradually accumulate scenes of historic interest as well as of natural beauty, which will attract the traveler and stimulate patriotism, and it is peculiarly appropriate that the Sons of the American Revolution should in this way show themselves mindful of their ancestors and try to perpetuate their memory and glory.

“The encampment here of Burgoyne’s captured army is a part of one of the great epochs of world history. The army which reached here consisted largely of Hessians. In that day the petty princes of Germany could compel their subjects to enroll themselves in the army, and when they were thoroughly trained as soldiers could hire them out to other nations and thus increase their royal income by the sufferings and death of their subjects, and the English army throughout the Revolution contained many regiments of these hired mercenaries who had no interest in the combat, no desire to fight, but were blindly obeying the selfish orders of their prince. Today such mercenary troops are unknown. The growth of individual rights has abolished the theory that the monarch owns his subject, and no king today would dare attempt to loan his soldiers to a contest in which his country had no interest. That is one mark of the development of the last hundred years.

“At Saratoga General Burgoyne surrendered only about 6000 men, and yet in that interesting volume by Creasey which describes the fifteen decisive battles of the world, as he calls them, from Marathon to Waterloo, this Battle of Saratoga is included. It is entitled to that distinction—not at all because of the forces engaged, but because of the tremendous results which followed from it. The British plan was to send Burgoyne with his army from Canada to New York, and thus cut in two the confederacy and separate New England from the other states. If that wise scheme had succeeded, if Burgoyne, who at the time of his surrender was within fifty miles of a junction with the English forces from New York, had succeeded, the whole history of this continent might have been different, for by the separation of the colonies quite probably their success would have been made impossible. Up to that time we had won no important victory, the campaigns had been discouraging, and foreign nations, from whom we were begging assistance had turned to us a deaf ear; but when on the field of Saratoga an army of regulars was compelled to surrender to our raw troops, and the whole British campaign was defeated, it not only aroused the enthusiasm and renewed the zeal of the colonists, but it impressed Europe with our military capacity and our ability to defend ourselves, and won for us the assistance and alliance with France, which insured our ultimate success.

"So this battle, trivial as it seems from the forces engaged, may justly be considered as the crisis of the Revolution, and every detail connected with it should be of interest to us and every local tradition should be preserved, and so we should be grateful for this becoming act of the Sons of the American Revolution today and may justly hope that the monument they dedicate here will be to this and succeeding generations a reminder of past heroism, an encouragement to historic research, and an incitement to preserve, to study and to emulate the glorious records of our fathers."

The unveiling exercises were closed with the singing of "America" by the audience. Dinner was served to the Compatriots and guests of George Washington Chapter in the Park Street church by the women of the Ramapogue Society. The after-dinner speakers, who were called upon for impromptu speeches, were President Charles E. Adams of the State Society and Vice-President Edwin S. Crandon. The former's address was largely of a congratulatory nature, and he said that while the Society commemorates the events of war, it should cooperate with all organizations working for a general peace. Mr. Crandon spoke of the five thousand and more graves of Revolutionary soldiers which have been marked through the influence of the Society and he further stated that in the country towns there still remain many unmarked, unidentified graves of Revolutionary soldiers. Dr. Francis H. Brown of Boston, read two interesting letters relative to Shays's rebellion.

At the conclusion of the speaking the guests were shown through the old Day house, after which they boarded special trolley cars, which conveyed them to Benton Park. They were shown the Shays's rebellion marker, placed by George Washington Chapter, and then as the guests of Colonel Frank H. Phipps, they were shown through the armory. The majority of the visitors returned to Boston in a special car leaving Springfield, but a party of fifteen waited until an early evening train, that they might make the trip to Mt. Tom.

The committee of the day was composed of President Charles E. Adams of Lowell, Vice-President Edwin S. Crandon of Boston, Registrar Herbert W. Kimball of Waban, Frank E. Woodward of Malden and Dr. Francis H. Brown of Boston, of the State Society, and President George D. Chamberlain, Dr. John MacDuffie, Rev. Newton M. Hall, Hon. Luke S. Stowe, Ethan Brooks, Col. Frank H. Phipps, Henry D. Marsh, William G. Wheat, Daniel E. Webster and Daniel P. Cole of the Chapter.

October 14, 1904. Voted to thank the George Washington Chapter for the excellent entertainment which they provided for those who attended the Fall Field Day at Springfield, October 4, 1904.

The Registrar reported that he had applied to the War Department for a headstone for the grave of Captain Jonathan Hale of Glastonbury, Conn., buried in the Walter Street Cemetery, Roslindale, to replace the original stone which was destroyed. The stone together with a marker was placed in the spring of 1905.

At the solicitation of the Poor Family Association, $100.00 was sent to the New Jersey Society, S. A. R., as a contribution towards the erection of a statue of General Enoch Poor, at Hackensack, N. J. This money was later returned to our Treasurer, a sufficient amount having been previously raised.

November 11, 1904. The grateful acknowledgment of a gift from the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of four volumes of its History was sent to the Museum, Military and Library Committee of that Company.

A communication from the California Society relating to a renewal of efforts to unite the two Societies of Sons of the American Revolution and Sons of the Revolution was acted upon as follows:—

Voted: That the Massachusetts Society, S. A. R. cordially sympathizes with the desire of the Compatriots of the California Society for the union of the Sons of the American Revolution and the Sons of the Revolution societies, but it is of the opinion that the initiative in the matter should be taken by the National Societies of both bodies instead of by individual State Societies of either or both.

The sum of fifty dollars was contributed towards placing a bronze tablet on a boulder to be erected next spring in Bell Rock Park, Malden, in memory of soldiers of the Revolution from that city, by Malden Chapter, S. A. R. and Deliverance Munroe Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution.

December 9, 1904. The attention of the Managers having been called to the difficulty in approaching the monument to the parents of Benjamin Franklin in the Granary burial ground, it was Voted: To ask the Cemetery Commission to re-locate the path and straighten the headstones of the Franklin Family, which had been neglected. Doctor Parker subsequently reported that he had interviewed the Commissioners, who promised to make the needed changes.

January 13, 1905. The Board of Managers placed on record resolutions of respect for the character and patriotic services of Hon. Howard K. Sanderson, of Lynn, who died December 14, 1904, and Rollin H. Cooke, of Pittsfield, who died December 10, 1904.

They also voted to expend not exceeding ten dollars for a marker and a tablet for the grave of Col. Louis Ansart, of Dracut, and Dr. M. G. Parker was appointed to place the same.

Voted: To approve the recommendation of the Historic Genealogical Society in its desire for our members' coöperation in copying the inscriptions on ancient headstones in New England burial grounds.

Washington's Birthday, February 22, 1905, was celebrated by the Society with an attendance of over four hundred of its members at Hotel Vendome. An informal reception was held at 10.30 a. m., followed by brief speeches by President Charles E. Adams, Rev. Daniel D. Roberts, President of the New Hampshire Society, S. A. R., Rev. James Eells, Gen. Francis H. Appleton, Richard H. W. Dwight, President of the Massachusetts Society of the Sons of the Revolution and Mr. Edwin D. Sibley.

April 14, 1905. The Board of Managers unanimously voted their thanks to Charles E. Adams for the earnest devotion, able services and sincere interest which he has shown during his term of office as President of the Society.

The Annual Meeting April 19, 1905, was held in the Old South Meeting House at 10.30 a. m. The colors were escorted to the platform by veterans of the Civil War, the members of the Society standing during the ceremony; prayer was offered by the Chaplain, Rev. Lewis W. Hicks.

President Adams spoke of the great loss the Society had sustained by the death of its Chaplain, the Rev. Carlton A. Staples, of Lexington, who died August 30, 1904. Mr. Frank E. Woodward presented the following resolutions of respect, which were unanimously adopted by a rising vote:—

The Massachusetts Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, desiring to express its appreciation of the life and character of the Rev. Carlton A. Staples, beloved and honored member and chaplain of our Society since its permanent organization, who has recently passed to his rest, inscribes on its records its high sense of esteem and respect for him as a man and an associate, and conveys to his widow and family its profound sympathy for them in the loss which they have sustained.

The annual reports of the Secretary, Walter S. Fox, the Registrar, Herbert W. Kimball, the Treasurer, Charles M. Green, M.D., and the Historian, Francis H. Lincoln were read by those officers. The Auditors' Report was read by the Secretary, all of which were accepted and ordered placed on file.

The thanks of the Society were presented to Miss Julia Goddard, of Brookline, for her contribution of fifty dollars towards the purchase of a large silk American flag of the original Revolutionary design, which was displayed here today for the first time. The Society places on record its sense of appreciation of her patriotic motive. The Society also returned its thanks to Compatriot Samuel May Boardman for his contribution of ten dollars for the same object.

It was voted to recommend to the National Society, S. A. R. the use of a thirteen starred flag of the Revolutionary design at all meetings of the Society and to advocate its use by all the State Societies at their meetings.

The National Society was invited to hold its Annual Congress in Boston in 1906.

The cordial greetings of the Society were extended to sons of soldiers of the Revolution, who are our only Honorary Members, and the Secretary was instructed to transmit to them our good wishes for their health, happiness and prosperity.

The President-Elect, Dr. Moses Greeley Parker, opened the speaking with an expression of thanks for the honor the Society had done him and emphasized the importance of Chapters in relation to the work of the State Society. The retiring President, Mr. Adams, who presided as toastmaster, introduced the speakers, Gen. Nelson A. Miles, William A. Marble, President of the Empire State Society, Rev. George H. Johnson, of Taunton and Fred A. Jenks, of Chelsea. Charles F. Read read an interesting poem written during the Revolution and for the first time made public.

June 17, 1905. A committee from the Society composed of Rev. Lewis W. Hicks, Vice-President Edward C. Battis, Herbert W. Kimball and Edward J. Cox were present at the exercises at Framingham when the bronze statue of a blacksmith minuteman was dedicated as a memorial to Revolutionary soldiers from that town. The statue was unveiled by Elizabeth Van Praag and the presentation to the town was by Frederick M. Esty and the acceptance and response by Harry N. Winch. The address of welcome was given by Compatriot John M. Merriam, and the oration by Compatriot Lieutenant-Governor Guild was most impressive. There were brief remarks by Mrs. C. H. Masury, the State Regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and Mrs. E. M. White, representing the Framingham Chapter. Singing by the children of the public schools was a feature of this very successful celebration.

September 8, 1905. Voted to contribute fifty dollars to the fund to be raised by the Berkshire County Chapter to mark the site of some place of historical interest in Pittsfield.

Voted to authorize Mr. Frank C. Hayward, Chairman of the Marker Committee to print a circular describing the new bronze marker for graves of patriots of the Revolution.

FALL FIELD DAY IN PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

By invitation of the Paul Jones Club of Portsmouth, N. H., a Field Day was held September 23, 1905, jointly with the Maine Society, S. A. R. The date marked the one hundred and twenty-sixth anniversary of the battle between the "Bon Homme Richard," commanded by Captain John Paul Jones and the British ship "Serapis," and was made the occasion for dedicating a tablet to mark the site of the shipyard at the ferry landing, Kittery, Maine, where the famous sloop-of-war "Ranger" was built.

The Paul Jones Club planned an excellent program for their guests, consisting of a meeting of the combined societies in the North Congregational Church in Portsmouth, with an address of welcome by Professor I. F. Frisbee and responses by President Parker of the Massachusetts Society, and Hon. A. F. Moulton of the Maine Society. Gen. Francis H. Appleton, President-General of the National Society, gave an interesting address in which he alluded to the signing of the treaty of peace between Japan and Russia recently consummated near this city and which will always be known as the "Treaty of Portsmouth." The singing by the school children formed an interesting feature of the meeting which closed by all joining in the anthem "America." After dinner, served in Freeman Hall, the afternoon was pleasantly spent in an excursion to the Navy Yard, where, through the courtesy of its Commander, the company were shown all the places of interest.

The bronze tablet which was purchased by the contributions of the Massachusetts and Maine Societies and the Paul Jones Club bears the following inscription:—

 SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION

October 13, 1905. A vote of thanks was given the Paul Jones Club of Portsmouth, N. H., for the excellent entertainment and program provided for those who attended the Fall Field Day at Portsmouth, September 23.

A vote of thanks was given to the Cemetery Commission of Boston for their excellent and patriotic work in compiling and publishing the inscriptions on gravestones in the old burial grounds of Boston, with the sincere hope that this work of such great value to the historian and genealogist will be continued until a complete record has been made of all the old burial grounds.

Voted to issue to Edwin Bruce Story and seventeen other members of the Society residing in Northampton or its vicinity, a charter for a Chapter formed in that city entitled the "Seth Pomeroy Chapter."

Voted to contribute fifty dollars to the town of Brookline, Mass., to mark the spot where the minutemen assembled before marching at the Lexington Alarm, April 19, 1775. This money was not appropriated because the town decided not to mark the place.

December 5, 1905. The thanks of the Managers were given to Boston Chapter for its offer to entertain the Congress of the National Society by giving a reception at Hotel Vendome on the evening of April 30, 1906.

A resolution was adopted protesting against the destruction of the old frigate "Constitution," as proposed by the Secretary of the Navy and endorsing the efforts being made by the government of the United States to preserve this historic vessel.

January 12, 1906. The following named members were appointed a committee to represent the Society at a meeting to be held in Boston, January 17, by the Commonwealth and City, to commemorate the two-hundredth birthday of Benjamin Franklin: President Parker, Vice-Presidents Crandon and Battis, Secretary Fox, Registrar Kimball and Treasurer Green.

April 13, 1906. A charter was granted to George A. Tainter and fourteen other members residing in Roxbury or its vicinity to form a Chapter to be called the Roxbury Chapter.

The committee appointed to purchase a silk Standard showing the regulation colors of the Society, at an expense of seventy-five dollars, displayed the flag at this meeting. President Parker then announced that he wished to present the flag to the Society and at once handed his check to the Registrar for the full amount. In accepting the gift Mr. Crandon offered appropriate thanks which were adopted and ordered to be engrossed on parchment and presented to Doctor Parker.

Mr. Francis H. Lincoln, for five years Historian of the Society, declining a re-election, was given a vote of thanks appreciative of his services.

Annual Meeting, April 19, 1906. The eighteenth Annual Meeting was held in the Old South Meeting House at 10.30 a. m. President Dr. Moses Greeley Parker presided and the exercises opened with prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. Lewis W. Hicks. The impressive ceremony of trooping the colors was performed by Col. Philip Reade, United States Army, and Capt. John L. Parker.

Doctor Parker gave an address of welcome and encouragement in showing some part of the work achieved during the past year and alluded to the exercises on Washington's Birthday this year, which were a departure from former years. The reception by Governor and Mrs. Curtis Guild, Jr., to the Society at the State House was a new feature much enjoyed by almost three hundred members of our Society. The general meeting which followed immediately after the reception was at the American House. The addresses by Chapter Presidents and the poem by Edwin D. Sibley were recalled as of high order and thoroughly enjoyed by the four hundred members present.

The Annual Reports of the Secretary, the Registrar, the Treasurer, the Historian and the Auditors were read by those officials. The Registrar included in his report that of Mr. Frank C. Hayward, the Chairman of the Committee on Markers for Graves of Revolutionary Patriots, showing that nearly six thousand five hundred markers have been sold by manufacturers, including those placed by the Society, since the first introduction of the marker for graves of soldiers and sailors of the Revolution.

In this connection mention should be made of the approval by the Managers of the vote of the Society, offered by Charles Norcross Breed, of Lynn, that on Memorial Day the graves of Revolutionary patriots should be decorated with the thirteen-starred flag, designated the "Betsy Ross flag."

Resolutions of sympathy for the sufferers by the San Francisco fire were offered by Mr. Alfonso S. Harris and were unanimously adopted, to be sent to the California Society, S. A. R. It was also voted to contribute two hundred dollars to the fund the state and city were raising for distressed California.

Mr. Charles H. Taylor, of Woburn, (through Compatriot M.

Littlefield) presented the Society with a large photographic portrait of Paul Revere and was voted the thanks of the Society.

The Standard presented to the Society by Doctor Parker was displayed and the vote of thanks given by the Managers was ratified by the vote of the Society.

The following members were elected delegates and attended the Congress of the National Society held in Boston, April 30–May 1, 1906: President Moses Greeley Parker, M.D., Senior Vice-President, Edwin S. Crandon, Delegate-at-Large, General Charles K. Darling, Delegates, Francis H. Brown, M.D., Charles E. Adams, Hon. Levi S. Gould, Frank E. Woodward, Calvin Lord, John G. Moseley, Hon. Edward C. Battis, Captain Albert A. Folsom, Charles M. Green, M.D., Francis H. Lincoln, Webster Bruce, Nathan Warren, Col. Ephraim Stearns, David H. Coolidge, Shepard D. Gilbert, Hon. Eugene F. Endicott, Grenville H. Norcross, Herbert W. Kimball, Samuel M. Boardman, Charles N. Breed, Charles B. Holman, Rev. Lewis W. Hicks, James F. Savage, Willis C. Hardy, David Pingree, Samuel Crowell, M.D., Charles F. Read, Frank A. Gardner, M.D. and Watson G. Cutter.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted in the re-election of the officials chosen last year with the exception that Edward J. Cox, of Newtonville, was elected in place of Francis H. Lincoln, who declined a re-nomination. The five Managers chosen to fill the vacancies caused by those whose term of three years expired by limitation were Messrs. George D. Chamberlain, of Springfield, John H. Manning, of Pittsfield, Edwin B. Story, of Northampton, Isaac N. Nutter, of East Bridgewater and George M. Rice, of Worcester.

Following the business the annual dinner took place at the American House, where its banquet hall was appropriately decorated with flags and a select orchestra discoursed patriotic music. President Parker presided and read letters from Governor Guild and Arthur J. C. Sowdon, Governor-General of the Society of Colonial Wars, both of whom regretted their inability to attend the dinner. The speakers were Eben F. Thompson, President of the Massachusetts Society of Sons of the Revolution, Hon. Solon W. Stevens, of Lowell, Colonel Philip Reade, United States Army, and General Francis H. Appleton.

The Massachusetts Society had the honor of entertaining the National Society of Sons of the American Revolution at its Congress held in Boston, April 30 and May 1, 1906. Preliminary to the Congress special religious services were held in Emmanuel Church, Sunday afternoon, April 29, when Rev. Julius W. Atwood, D.D., Chaplain of the National Society, preached an impressive sermon which was well attended by the officials of the Society and many delegates who had arrived early for the opening of the Congress.

The sessions of the Congress were held in Hotel Vendome, April 30 and in Faneuil Hall, May 1. General Francis H. Appleton, the President-General, presided and the attendance of delegates was the largest of any of the Congresses held by the Society.

The Massachusetts Society entertained the delegates with excursions to Lexington and Concord and to places of historical interest in and around Boston.

In the evening of April 30, Boston Chapter gave a reception at the Vendome in honor of the delegates, which was largely attended by ladies and gentlemen from both organizations. In the evening of May 1, the Massachusetts Society gave a dinner to the National Society at Hotel Somerset.

Souvenirs presented by the Massachusetts Society to delegates consisted of a bronze medal showing Faneuil Hall, and an illustrated book containing a warm greeting, a list of historic sites, with incidental descriptions, list of old tavern sites and names of old time Boston Streets, now bearing modern names. It was prepared by a committee made up of Messrs. Edwin S. Crandon, Chairman, Walter Kendall Watkins and Edwin W. McGlenen.

June 8, 1906. The resignation of Mr. Walter S. Fox as Secretary of the Society was accepted with deep regret and a vote of thanks was passed for his very faithful and acceptable services.

A letter from Mr. J. Mora Moss, Secretary of the California Society, was read, in which he gratefully acknowledged the letter of sympathy and the vote of the Society to contribute to the general funds in aid of sufferers by the great fire in San Francisco.

Voted to contribute $50.00 to the Paul Revere Memorial Association to aid in purchasing the Paul Revere House in North Square, Boston.

FALL FIELD DAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 1906

By invitation of the Rhode Island Society, S. A. R., the Massachusetts Society joined with them in an excursion by steamboat on Narragansett Bay. The party numbering about one hundred ladies and gentlemen were received at Providence about 10 a. m., by a committee from the Rhode Island Society, who escorted the party to the cars which conveyed them to the boat, where they were presented with a complete itinerary of the points of historical interest to be seen and also provided with a lunch.

It may be recalled that in the winter of 1776 the British army occupied Newport and continued to remain on Rhode Island soil for nearly three years. During this time the enemy ravaged unprotected houses on the shore of the bay, burning and destroying property, and kept the inhabitants of the country continually on the alert. British ships impeded navigation and all the seaport towns were subject to their depredations. The colonists built fortifications and coast-guard stations from Providence to Newport and today one may see Fort Independence and Robin Hill Fort, both dating from those early times and still in a good state of preservation. Gaspee Point was shown, where the British revenue schooner "Gaspee" was burned, June 9, 1772, one of the first acts of resistance to English tyranny. Other notable places of Revolutionary interest are Bristol, which was bombarded by British ships in October 1775, and partially burned in May 1778; the Ferry, where Col. Barton landed from Warwick when he went down the island and captured Gen. Prescott; Common Fence Point, where the American troops were encamped during the Rhode Island campaign and the Stone Bridge, near which the Americans crossed the river after the battle of Rhode Island. The party proceeded half way down Seaconnet river and saw the place where Major Silas Talbot captured the British galley "Pigot," October 28, 1778; then the return trip was begun, going back as far as Rocky Point and viewing the battleship Louisiana, which was coaling at the Portsmouth station. On the return the party stopped at Boyden Heights, where an excellent clambake was served. After dinner brief remarks were made by John P. Farnsworth, President of the Rhode Island Society, Major Henry V. A. Joslin and President Dr. Moses Greeley Parker.

Among the participants in the excursion were John Adams and Albert F. Kenyon, who are real sons of soldiers of the Revolution.

Everybody was of the opinion that the outing was very enjoyable and its success reflected credit upon the able committee from the Rhode Island Society.

September 14, 1906. The Board of Managers placed on record their recognition of the loss sustained by the Society in the death of Captain Nathan Appleton, August 25, 1906. He had been one of the Vice-Presidents, April, 1892 to April, 1902 and had been a loyal worker for the Society, with especially valuable work in introducing the marker for graves of soldiers of the Revolution and placing them in Boston, and Paris, France.

February 8, 1907. Through a gift of one hundred dollars from General Francis H. Appleton, the Managers voted to have a large oil portrait of James Otis painted by Walter Gilman Page, to be placed in the Council Chamber of the Old State House, where he made his renowned speech against "Writs of Assistance."

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1907

Great patriotic enthusiasm marked the annual observance of Washington's Birthday, held in Faneuil Hall. By special courtesy of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company, the Society was permitted to hold an informal reception in their Armory previous to the dinner which was served at one o'clock. President Parker presided. The guests of the Society were Hon. John S. Wise, of New York City, Professor W. K. Wickes, of Syracuse, N. Y., Historian of the National Society, S. A. R., and William M. Hill of the United States Navy. Addresses were made by those gentlemen and also by General Francis H. Appleton and Charles F. Read, who offered a resolution favoring the preservation of the Old State House by legislative enactment providing that it shall be solely used for historical purposes, prohibiting its use for any other purpose whatever, and asking the passage of the law by the Legislature. The resolution was unanimously adopted and Charles F. Read, Dr. Moses Greeley Parker, Edwin S. Crandon, General Charles K. Darling and Alfonso S. Harris were appointed a committee to represent the Society at hearings before the Legislative Committee.

An interesting incident of the meeting was the presentation to the Society by W. L. Hill, United States Navy, of a fragment of a one thousand pound shell fired from a thirteen inch gun, on the battleship Massachusetts, during an engagement with the enemy at Santiago de Cuba in June, 1898.

March 8, 1907. The following resolution on the death of Com-patriot John Howland Crandon, who died December 12, 1906, was adopted by a rising vote:—

In an entire membership it would have been impossible to find one more devoted to the ideals which we seek to perpetuate, or who in his own life more truly typified a Son of the American Revolution. Born in old Plymouth of distinguished ancestry, an ancestry which reached to the very foundation of the Colony, he came in early manhood to Boston and thereafter for more than a generation was identified with the active, business, official and social life of this and our neighboring city. Of striking personality and courtly bearing, a delightful companion, a wise and helpful friend, he honored and dignified every position he held. With a rare gift of public speaking he was often heard with pleasure. His pen and voice were constantly employed in helpful work for the advancement of industry and the stimulation of the study of history and a love of patriotism. We wish to record our deep sense of loss in his death and to express our heartfelt sympathy with his bereaved family.

ANNUAL MEETING, APRIL 19, 1907

The nineteenth Annual Meeting was held in the Old South Meeting House, Boston, at 10.30 a. m. The morning meeting opened with prayer by Rev. George H. Johnson, of Taunton. Hon. Cornelius A. Pugsley, President-General of the National Society, was the guest of the Society and briefly addressed the meeting. He was followed by President Parker, who in his interesting annual address reviewed the events of the past year.

The reports of the Secretary and Registrar, the Treasurer, the Historian and the Auditors were read by those officials. The Secretary's report showed a membership to date of 1,557, of which sixteen are actual sons of soldiers of the Revolution and two are great-great-grandsons of Lafayette.  WALTER L. FOX }

Historian Edward J. Cox read the necrology of the year showing the names of thirty-two members who had died since the previous annual meeting.

The feature of the meeting was the unveiling of a portrait of James Otis, painted by order of the Society by Walter Gilman Page, and is well worthy of the subject. James Otis Porter, a great-great-grandson of the distinguished advocate, unveiled the portrait and in behalf of the Otis family thanked the Society for the honor done to their ancestor and gave a brief sketch of the legal services of James Otis which led up to the American Revolution.

On motion of D. L. V. Moffett, the Society voted to apply such funds now in the Treasury, not otherwise appropriated, which may in the judgment of the Board of Managers be found necessary, to build one of the Bays of the Cloister of the Colonies of the Washington Memorial Church now in process of construction at Valley Forge, or, if not a Bay, then a tablet or some other suitable memorial, as an expression of our gratitude to the soldiers of the "Old Bay State," who endured suffering for the sake of American liberty.

Professor Edwin B. Story offered the following resolve, which was unanimously adopted: That the Committee on Coöperation in Patriotic Work be requested to petition the Legislature to publish an additional volume, or volumes, of the State Publications of Soldiers and Sailors in the War of the Revolution, to contain the names of such men as should properly be included among the records as proven by vouchers and town archives, or other original contemporary records or documents.

Among the delegates who were elected, the following represented the Society at the Congress of the National Society held in Denver, Colorado, June 3, 4 and 5, 1907: Frank Hervey Pettingell, Delegate-at-Large, Arra F. Clark (one of our actual sons), Charles B. Holman, Samuel M. Boardman and Waldo E. Boardman.

On motion of Hon. Levi S. Gould the thanks of the Society were voted to President Parker and all other officials who have served the Society the past year.

The election of officers for the ensuing year then took place, a record of which appears in another place. The meeting then adjourned to the American House for dinner.

ANNUAL DINNER, APRIL 19, 1907

The principal address of the day, after the dinner at the American House, was by Hon. Cornelius A. Pugsley, the President-General of the National Society, S. A. R. Mr. Pugsley said in part:—

"It is not of the events that surrounded Lexington that I wish to speak today, but of this American citizenship and American statesmanship, which has meant so much in the past, upon which so much depends in the future of this Republic, and for which this great organization, the Sons of the American Revolution, should ever stand.

"We have acquired vastness of empire, but in our national life we have not underestimated, I believe, those powerful factors of religion, culture and power. We have held fast to those principles of the early fathers, who founded the Republic upon the Bible, the church and the school. They believed in these refining influences in their individual and national life, and they placed the church and the school side by side. They had piety and they had courage.

"Adhering to the principles of the Republic's founders, our army and our diplomats and statesmen, since those early days, have vastly extended the boundaries of our territory. But with our vast domain, and with our rapid commercial and trade development have come weighty problems to be solved, questions of representation, of commercial relations, the control of gigantic corporations, the restriction of immigration, the solution of the Japanese or race question, the regulation of railroads and questions of veracity. But I believe that all these great problems will be solved by a wise and enlightened statesmanship, such as has ever guided this Republic, such as will reflect and express the sovereign will of 80,000,000 of freemen.

"I believe that ours should be a government which recognizes no favored interests, but one which is conducted in the interests of the whole people. A government in which the many are not the servants of the few. A government in which individual and property rights are sacredly guarded. Every true American believes in the protection by law and under law of property and the rights of property.

"But every true American also believes that gigantic corporations, which, through favored legislation and unjust discrimination in railroad rebates, have been able to fasten themselves upon the people and to control absolutely great industries, to make impossible competition even in the necessities of life, should have their power broken, and should be brought under the strong arm of the law and an aroused public sentiment, if this nation is to reach its highest and truest destiny.

"And I believe that the American people will uphold President

Roosevelt and those statesmen who are seeking, as best they may, to control these mighty forces in our national life that may prove to be harmful and detrimental to the body politic.

"We want the same possibilities and opportunities for the success of the individual that have been the heritage of the American from the days when the Cavalier landed at Jamestown, the Dutch at New Amsterdam and the Pilgrims at Plymouth Rock. And I believe that all this can be accomplished by a wise and prudent statesmanship, without checking the wondrous progress and growth of our country along commercial lines.

"One of the greatest problems before the American people today, and one of the most important in its bearing upon our citizenship, is the Americanizing of the vast hordes of immigrants that are weekly landed upon our shores. I believe we should gladly welcome the honest, upright sons of other lands, but we do not want the criminal, the paupers, the off-scourings of Europe. We do not want our citizenship weakened. We do not want our high ideals lowered. We do not want our American customs, our American institutions, our American Sunday disregarded. We do want brawn, brain, muscle. We want integrity of character, high ideals, sturdy patriotism. We want the men who will become Americans in spirit, as well as American in citizenship.

"It is not, however, the quantity of our population that means most for our citizenship and our national life. We want men controlling our railroads, our financial institutions, our life insurance companies—men in legislative halls and in all the varied channels of our nation's activities, who will place honor and integrity above wealth and power—men whose devotion to high ideals and a true citizenship will prove them patriots indeed. If an aristocracy is ever formed in this country it will surely be an aristocracy of character and merit, rather than an aristocracy based upon mere wealth."

He was followed by Eben F. Thompson, who brought greetings from the sister Society of Massachusetts Sons of the Revolution. Mr. Edwin D. Sibley, who has often delighted our Society with his original and selected stories, again gave us one of his best entertainments.

Address by Rev. George H. Johnson:

"This is our day of inspiration. As sons of those who dared attempt the impossible, who rose up against a mighty nation, and faced its veteran soldiers, we come together that we may drink of the old well of patriotism, and with spirits refreshed may rise up to face our foes and do our stern tasks. For there is no age and no time that does not summon its children to high achievement and noble endeavor; dangers always confront us and opportunity never fails where there are men of free and fearless spirit.

"No foreign foe may invade our shores, but within our own borders there is a racial problem that threatens our good name as law abiding citizens; an industrial setting of class against class that becomes a nightmare in our dreams of the future; and in my judgment, more insidious in its evil tendencies, more corrupting of our integrity, more detrimental to our worthiness to inherit the legacies of the fathers, is the question of municipal administration, the problem of the honest handling of our business affairs in city and town; for I do not believe that the question of corrupt administration is limited to a few large and notorious city governments. In proportion to the opportunity, the spirit of greed is as strong in the little township upon some high hill as it is in the great city where centres the business and the ability of all the hillsides drained by the waters flowing from the hill to the harbor on the great ocean.

"The essence of treason is always the putting of self—of personal advantage—above the common weal, above the duty we owe to our homeland. And if today we are to show the spirit of the fathers whose name we bear it is for us to show that in us as in them is the high spirit which subordinates self and its lustings, that our fatherland may be saved and made worthy of the world's respect.

"Face to face then with the question whether our loyalty and patriotism can withstand the undermining of greed for gain in the large opportunity of today, we are here that we may pledge our fullest allegiance to the principles of the fathers and may gird up the loins of patriotism in behalf of the imperiled liberty of our land. And as we listen to catch the message that comes from our predecessors where do we find it more tersely stated than in the words of the lamented Garfield: 'Never to despair of the Republic is the first lesson of patriotism and the highest duty of the citizen.' We do not deny nor wink at the peril of the hour, but we do declare our faith that the Spirit of '76 is not decrepit nor is it diseased beyond the power of recovery. In the blood that has come down to us is the spirit that will not falter nor despair until our victory be won even as our fathers' was.

“Let me ask you to realize anew that the very problems that confront us are in themselves an incentive, and will surely awaken in us a power, perhaps unrealized before, that will make us equal to the task awaiting us.

“It is known to students of insect life that there are birth strains (as it were) thro’ which the butterfly or moth must pass in escaping from the chrysaline stage, which require some hours for the insect to accomplish, but which may be passed in almost as few minutes by a little help from a skilled attendant; but such attendant almost without exception finds that the human help, which thus spares the tiny form of life its struggle to free itself, leaves the life without the strength to survive and death is the result; life for the moth depends upon the strength developed in the struggle to overcome the imprisoning form of the past.

“So in our national existence we sometimes wish that our children may be spared some of the bitter struggles that have fallen to our lot, forgetting that it is to those very struggles that the nation’s strength is due; and when we are told that the problems of the future are to be greater than even those that were faced in the past, we are filled with a high hope and declare: ‘So much the more will be the strength and the glory of the days to come.’ What step of progress from the primitive protoplasm to the present hour has not been the result of a struggle patiently persisted in and bravely endured? What possible danger of the present or the future will not have at its heart the invitation to come up higher in the scale of being?

“The great astronomer’s Lowell lectures have delighted us all the past winter by the story of those great canals upon the planet Mars—canals that carry the melting waters at the poles to the parched equator in great ditches of a width of a hundred miles. As we compare these gigantic achievements with our petty problem at Suez or on Panama we are immediately confronted with the conclusion: ‘A superior race.’ Undoubtedly the Martian is in a higher stage of existence than we have yet attained; but courage yet, my brothers, we have begun to ‘make the dirt fly’; and if a kindly Providence shall give us pressure enough, from stern necessity we may yet be able to overtake and surpass the smaller planet.

“Moreover in the consideration of the problem of graft I do find evidence of progress in the right direction. On page 105 of the Bradford Mss. you may read how Mr. Weston (probably our earliest grafter) was made to face the charge that he had used:

'Ye Counsell of New England to procure him—many peeces of great ordnance for New England, pretending great fortification hear in this countri & I know not what shipping. The which when he had obtained he went and sould them beyond seas for his private profit.' And Governor Bradford adds: 'Mr. Weston excused it as well as he could but could not deny it.' Now it is past dispute that, on the whole, righteousness is on the gain, for while in the capitol at Harrisburg it was possible for the grafters to buy a hundred dollar boot-blackening outfit and charge it to the state for four thousand dollars, yet there remained at least the chance to black the boots of the legislators, while in Governor Bradford's day there was left of the 'many peeces of great ordnance' only Mr. Weston's excuse. And have we not seen the election of a Folk in Missouri and of a Hughes in New York, when all their party associates were beaten? And has one of us doubted for a moment that it was due to the approval of their tested integrity? It is certain that the heart of our electorate is uncorrupted whenever we are called upon to account for the popularity with the common people of the man in the White House, the man whom not even his bitterest enemies dare charge with corruption, and whose courage in facing such as are entrenched behind the spoils of lawlessness has never been doubted for a moment.

"It has been my lot to live in two distinct stages of our national development; as a boy I knew the wild excitement and glorious outcome of the war which made us, as a nation, free, compact, mighty. And I knew also the cost of that great gain, for the boyish memory of the military funeral—of the tears of wives and mothers, of the dreadful losses of that stern strife between brethren—these can never be outgrown nor forgotten; they were the inevitable cost of the gain of that period of our nation's development.

"My boyhood passed to manhood in an age of commercial progress. It has been good to live in this age. Well justified is our pride in the growth of our industries until we have seen the products of our skill as workmen undersell the manufactures of the old world's cheap labor; until we have seen the balance of trade, long marking us as a debtor nation, turn, and the powers of Europe, yea, and of Asia also, have come to Wall Street for the money wherewith to wage their wars and do their business. It has been a great advance and marks our advent to the foremost rank of the world powers.

"But who can dream that such progress is possible without some of the soil and stain of commercialism clinging to our skirts? In a commercial age there must be moral losses even as in war there are wounds and death. Sad and bitter as these things are, yet they are the inevitable accompaniment of the time; business will leave in its train some bankruptcy and some defaulters; but dreadful as the loss may be it is not the supreme thing; we do not see aright if we see not the main point of progress: of large advance to the greater good. And business, yea, even commercialism, are the avenues along which our fatherland moves on to ever greater destiny, to an increasing service to the large humanity.

“Moral corruption, since it is incipient treason, can never be excused, no matter how high or great the traitor hearts that yearn for the unearned, unmerited increment of success. Moral corruption must be hunted down and disgraced with prison stripes even as has been done in the case of two United States senators; but so long as the heart of our electorate shall respond to the candidacy of the honest and courageous, so long as high place is unable to be a bar to the punishment of the guilty, so long as the heart of our great nation—its unknown but pure-hearted, high-spirited, clean-handed, white-souled majority of the common people—so long as these are worthy of the white stripe of purity upon our national emblem, so long the discerning and the thoughtful will know that the spirit of the fathers is in the children, and that the courage of Lexington and Concord Bridge will be sufficient now as then to turn back all adversaries of our nation's progress and of its worth to humanity. The Sons of the American Revolution will transmit what they have received, and it shall be our final record not simply that we were sons of our sires but that we were sires of our sons.”

General Charles K. Darling, the newly-elected President was then presented and received an ovation of applause and cheers. He thanked the members for the honor conferred and assured them that he would endeavor to carry on the work the coming year faithfully and to the best of his ability. He then commended the work done by Walter Gilman Page, the artist who painted the portrait of James Otis, unveiled that morning.

Letters regretting their absence from the meeting were read from General Francis H. Appleton, J. Grafton Minot, and Hon. Samuel L. Powers.

GENERAL INFORMATION AND
MATTERS OF HISTORICAL INTEREST

SEAL

THE SEAL of the National Society is one and seven-eighths of an inch in diameter, and consists of the figure of a minute-man standing by the side of a plough, surrounded by thirteen stars; the whole encircled by a band three-eighths of an inch wide, upon which in raised letters is the name of the Society, with the date of organization. That of the State Society is identical with that of the National Society, except that within the name of the parent society is the motto "Massachusetts Society, organized April 19, 1889."

INSIGNIA

THE BADGE—Obverse: A gold cross of four arms and eight points, of the same size as the Chevalier's Cross of the French Legion of Honor, with white enamelled arms. In the centre is a gold medallion bust of George Washington in profile, surrounded by a ribbon in blue enamel, on which is the motto of the Society in gold letters, "Libertas et Patria." Between the medallion and the points of the cross is a laurel wreath. Reverse: Like the obverse; the medallion, however, has the figure of a minute-man, surrounded by a ribbon in blue enamel, containing in gold letters the words, "Sons of the American Revolution." The cross is surrounded by an eagle in gold, suspended by a silk ribbon of blue, white, and buff.

The cross is a reproduction of the emblem of the French Order of St. Louis, with certain changes, and was adopted to commemorate the assistance given to the Colonies by Louis XVI, Grand Master of that Order. The medallion, containing the head of Washington and the figure of the minute-man, is fitly placed upon a cross of such an origin and associations.

THE ROSETTE—The rosette is a button in the shape of a raised cup, of blue, white, and buff ribbon. It is to be worn in the upper left-hand button-hole of the coat.

The only badge now authorized by the National Congress is that described above, superseding all forms previously used. The price of the badge, or cross of St. Louis, adapted to this Society, is nine dollars. It may be obtained of Messrs. J. E. Caldwell & Co., Philadelphia, by permit issued by the Registrar-General, which will be furnished by the Registrar. The rosette may be procured of the Registrar for twenty-five cents.

THE OFFICIAL MARKER

The subject of identifying and marking the graves of Revolutionary soldiers and sailors has for some time engaged the attention of the Massachusetts Society of the Sons of the American Revolution.

The General Court of Massachusetts, by an act passed in 1884, authorized towns to appropriate money for the purpose of erecting headstones or other monuments to the memory of the patriot dead.

The design adopted by the Massachusetts Society follows the insignia badge of the Society, having the letters S. A. R. (Soldier American Revolution) on three of the arms, and the figures 1775 on the fourth arm of the cross. More than six thousand five hundred markers have been made and used throughout this and other States, and even in our distant possessions and in foreign lands. A list of soldiers and sailors whose graves have been designated was printed in connection with the Society's Year Books of 1901 and 1904.

The Massachusetts Society, while retaining the design of the marker as originally made of iron, has now entirely changed its material and mode of manufacture. The cross has been slightly reduced in size, and is made of good bronze. It is securely fastened to a rod of either brass or steel; and this, with the cross, makes its entire length about thirty-five inches. If desired, the end of the rod having an anchor may be set in cement, which is to be buried eighteen inches below the surface of the ground. This anchor will render the marker, when once adjusted, almost immovable; and, with the bronze and brass of which it is composed, the whole will last for many years. The National Congress, at its session in 1894, adopted the design for its official marker, and recommended its use by all the State Societies. At the session of 1903 the changes suggested by the Massachusetts Society were approved.

Full information for procuring the markers may be obtained from the Registrar.

INFORMATION

MEMBERSHIP in this Society is strictly limited by the National and State Constitutions to such persons as can prove their descent from well-authenticated patriot Revolutionary ancestry. Collateral descent has at no time been allowed in this body by prescribed law or otherwise. Appropriate papers and all needed information for making application for admission will be furnished by the Registrar.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP must be made out in duplicate; must be signed by the applicant on the second and fourth pages; must be sworn to before a justice or a notary; and returned to the Registrar with check for five dollars—which includes the admission fee and the first year's assessment. Biographical data should be given as fully as possible, and reference to authorities quoted. Care should be taken that all these requirements be carried out, as no imperfectly prepared papers can be received.

The Secretary of most of the States will make a search of the rolls and archives, and furnish an official certificate for a small sum. The Commissioner of Pensions at Washington will furnish a certificate, gratis, if the ancestor was a pensioner.

THE CERTIFICATE OF MEMBERSHIP issued by the National Society, handsomely engraved, and of size suitable for framing, will be furnished for the sum of one dollar in advance. Application to be made to the Registrar.

RATIFICATION
FEDERAL CONSTITUTION

1787-1788

John H. Manning
Pittsfield, Mass.

In 1773, January 12th, the men of Berkshire assembled at Sheffield, unanimously adopted resolutions throwing off the yoke of the British Courts. From that date until the states were formed they were governed by a committee of prominent men. This was done in no spirit of lawlessness, but rather with a supreme regard for the law being established on a firm basis.

Those were sorry days for Massachusetts. The people were without credit, currency or confidence. Bellamy has told in the "Duke of Stockbridge" of the conditions which all suffered, and that culminated in the Shays's Rebellion. What could be done to bring order out of chaos? That was the burning question. There were no paths to follow by which to establish a Republic; the majority did not believe in the divine right of kings; quite a minority were in favor of some form of Monarchy, and Washington might have been Dictator, but he crushed the movement, which is more to his credit than leading the Colonies to victory. This necessity compelled the calling of the Federal Convention. This Convention assembled at Philadelphia, May 2, 1787, and was in session until September 17, of the same year. The result of their long discussion was the framing and adoption of the Federal Constitution. Article VII of the Constitution is as follows: "The ratification of the conventions of nine states shall be sufficient for the establishment of this Constitution between the states so ratifying the same."

While each Article received full and careful discussion, Article I, Sections 1 and 2, were the portions which aroused the most discussion. Section 1. "All legislative powers herein granted shall be vested in a Congress of the United States, which shall consist of a Senate and House of Representatives." Section 2 states the duties of Congress.

All progress was blocked until Franklin moved that "Congress shall be composed of a number of representatives not exceeding one for every thirty thousand and all bills for raising revenue shall originate in the House of Representatives, but the Senate may propose or concur in amendments as in other bills. The Senate shall be composed of two Senators from each state, chosen by the Legislature thereof."

Franklin's motion smoothed out the difficulty and it was voted. It may interest you to know that this Constitution was voted by a majority of one.

The Constitution was adopted in 1787 by Delaware, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey; Connecticut followed and all eyes were turned towards Massachusetts. The Federal Convention assembled in September, 1787 and was in session until February 6, 1788. The Constitution was not looked on with favor. There were 300 members, seventeen of whom had been engaged as participants in Shays's rebellion. Many of the members objected to the great power given Congress "to fix taxation, handle elections, to unloose the purse strings of the people to manipulate trade"—the slave vote of the South; they tried to tack on a cloud of amendments to the Constitution and defeat its ratification. One of the members was a persistent opponent to the ratification. His speeches were full of forebodings. His slurs upon lawyers, men of learning, and moneyed men, were full of venom, constantly stating that these men were trying to deceive the people. That they would swallow up us little people, like the great leviathan, just as the whale swallowed up Jonah. This brought to his feet Jonathan Smith of Lanesboro, whose rugged eloquence and horse sense won the day and the Constitution was voted by a majority of nineteen:—

"Mr. President: I am a plain man and get my living by the plough. I am not used to speak in public, but I beg your leave to say a few words to my brother plough-joggers in this house. I have lived in a part of the country where I have known the worth of good government by the want of it. There was a black cloud that rose in the east last winter, and spread over the west." (Here

Mr. Wedgery interrupted: "Mr. President, I wish to know what the gentleman means by the east?") "I mean, sir, the County of Bristol. The cloud rose there, and burst upon us, and produced a dreadful effect. It brought on a state of anarchy, and that leads to tyranny. I say it brought anarchy. People that used to live peaceably, and were before good neighbors, got distracted, and took up arms against government." (Here Mr. Kingsley called to order and asked what the history of that winter had to do with the Constitution. Several gentlemen, among the rest the Hon. Mr. Adams, said the gentleman was in order, to let him go on his own way.) "I am going, Mr. President, to show you, my brother farmers, what were the effects of anarchy, that you may see the reasons why I wish for good government. People, I say, took up arms, and then, if you went to speak to them, you had the musket of death presented to your breast. They would rob you of your property, threaten to burn your houses, oblige you to be on your guard night and day; alarms spread from town to town; families were broke up; the tender mother would cry 'O my son is among them! What shall I do for my child?' Some were taken captive, children taken out of their schools and carried away. Then we should hear of an action, and the poor prisoners were set in the front, to be killed by their own friends. How dreadful, how distressing was this! Our distress was so great that we should have been glad to snatch at anything that looked like a government, for protection. Had any person that was able to protect us come and set up his standard, we should all have flocked to it, even if it had been a monarch, and that monarch might have proved a tyrant; so that you see that anarchy leads to tyranny; it is better to have one tyrant than so many at once.

"Now, Mr. President, when I saw this Constitution, I found that it was a cure for these disorders. It was just such a thing as we wanted. I got a copy of it and read it over and over. I had been a member of the Convention to form our own State Constitution, and had learnt something of the checks and balances of power, and I found them all here. I did not go to any lawyer to ask his opinion; we have no lawyer in our town, and we do well enough without. I formed my own opinion, and was pleased with this Constitution. My honorable old daddy there (pointing to Mr. Singletary) won't think that I expect to be a congressman and swallow up the liberties of the people. I never had any post, nor do I want one, and before I am done you will think I don't deserve one. But I don't think worse of the Constitution because lawyers, and men of learning, and moneyed men, are fond of it. I don't suspect that they want to get into Congress and abuse their power. I am not of such jealous make. They that are honest men themselves are not apt to suspect other people. I don't know why our constituents have not as good a right to be jealous of us as we seem to be of the Congress, and I think those gentlemen who are so very suspicious that as soon as a man gets into power he turns rogue, had better look at home.

"We are by this Constitution allowed to send ten members to Congress. Have we not more than that number fit to go? I dare say, if we pick out ten, we shall have another ten left, and I hope ten times ten—and will not there be a check upon those that go? Will they go to Congress and abuse their power, and do mischief, when they know they must return and look the other ten in the face, and be called to account for their conduct? Some gentlemen think that our liberty and property are not safe in the hands of moneyed men, and men of learning. I am not of that mind.

"Brother farmers, let us suppose a case now. Suppose you had a farm of fifty acres, and your title was disputed, and there was a farm of five thousand acres joined to you, that belonged to a man of learning, and his title was involved in the same difficulty; would you not be glad to have him for your friend, rather than stand alone in the dispute? Well, the case is the same; these lawyers, these moneyed men, these men of learning, are all embarked in the same cause with us, and we must all swim or sink together; and shall we throw the Constitution overboard because it does not please us all alike? Suppose two or three of you had been at pains to break up a piece of rough land, and sow it with wheat; would you let it lie waste because you could not agree what sort of fence to make? Would it not be better to put up a fence that did not please every one's fancy, rather than not fence it at all, or keep disputing about it until the wild beasts came in and devoured it? Some gentlemen say, 'Don't be in a hurry, take time to consider, and don't take a leap in the dark.' I say, take things in time, gather fruit when it is ripe. There is a time to sow and a time to reap. We sowed our seed when we sent men to the Federal Convention; now is the harvest; now is the time to reap the fruit of our labor, and if we don't do it now, I am afraid we never shall have another opportunity."

Of the result of this vote Washington wrote Knox, "This victory, though won by a small majority, has dampened the hopes of the anti-federalists in the seven other states which have not yet ratified the Constitution and they are filled with disappointment and chagrin. Nothing less than sound sense, good reasoning, moderation and temper of the supporters of the measure could have carried the question. It will be very influential on the equivocal states."

Webster said, of all the men he had known, this was the most characterized by sound sense, correct principles, and a correct judgment as to public affairs.

We can see how a man charged with his sense of right, thoroughly in earnest and speaking from his heart, carries his hearers with him.

The Commissioners who compiled the Colonial Records, Ratification of the Federal Constitution, say, "Is it not wonderful that it was owing to a Berkshire man (Jonathan Smith of Lanesboro) more than any other one man, that Massachusetts came to ratify the Federal Constitution?" While all our people seem to have shown a genius for code-making and wonderful appreciation of the philosophy of Republican government, the honor of being first and most zealous in insisting upon a new Constitution, properly and lawfully formed, undoubtedly belongs to the little community scattered along the extreme western border of the Province along the valley of the Housatonic.

Jonathan Smith served his generation well. His townsmen named Constitution Hill in grateful recognition of his service. This does not seem to me sufficient. His name does not appear. His modest tombstone, in the old burying-ground in Lanesboro, does not mention this service. Can this Society do any better work than place a memorial on Constitution Hill to perpetuate the memory of him who did so much to make this Nation?

WASHINGTON ELM

FAMILY TRADITIONS CONCERNING THE WASHINGTON ELM

By

Watson Grant Cutter

Vice-President Cambridge Chapter Sons of the American Revolution

Mr. President and Gentlemen—Compatriots:

Under what has for generations been known as the historic Washington Elm stands a tablet upon which is this inscription, "Under this tree Washington first took command of the American Army July 3, 1775." Is that inscription true or is it not? My attention has been called to this matter a number of times by seeing in print that this inscription is not true, the writers claiming that there is no documentary evidence to prove it, no documentary evidence to prove that that is the identical tree.

Most pointedly was this matter called to my attention by two interviews, which I had with two different gentlemen. The first was a German, a man of leisure, a great traveler and a man whose hobby has been the investigation of myths and fabulous stories. He told me that the idols of his youth had been badly shattered, and when his pet idol, the story of William Tell, was proved to be a myth, it almost broke his heart. "Why," said he, "you have a myth in Cambridge, and that is the Washington Elm. I have examined into that matter and have consulted all the authorities which I can find and cannot find the first particle of evidence of the truth of the inscription on that tablet. Undoubtedly Washington sought the shade of a tree, as authorities say that it was a very hot day, unusually hot even for that season of the year, but when you come to say that that is the identical tree under which he stood, there is absolutely no proof whatsoever." I asked him how long he had lived in this country and he said forty years; the last twenty he had lived in Boston. I asked him if any of his ancestors lived in Boston and he said, "No, I was the first of my family to come from Germany." Of course I knew that he could not have any family tradition concerning our country, so I changed the subject.

Three days after my first interview a Cambridge gentleman came into my office and knowing that his family had lived in Cambridge for many generations, I brought the matter up to him, and asked him if he knew anything about it. His answer was, "It is a myth pure and simple; there is absolutely no truth in that inscription and it ought to be erased. It is a humbug from beginning to end; you might as well choose any other tree on the Common, either elm or linden or no tree at all." I said to him, "I am astonished that you, a Cambridge man, should talk about it as you do." He said, "I can't help it. I can't lie about it; there is absolutely no truth in it." Said I, "Did not your ancestors live in Cambridge before the Revolution?" He replied, "Yes, for generations." I asked him if he hadn't some memoranda bearing on the subject, some old papers or documents of any kind. His answer was, "Nothing of the kind." Said I, "Haven't you any family traditions in the matter which have come down from one generation to another?" He replied, "Nothing of the kind; I tell you the whole matter is a humbug from beginning to end." Said I to him, "Were any of your ancestors present on Cambridge Common, July 3, 1775?" He replied, "My ancestors were Royalists, and undoubtedly were not present on that occasion." Said I, "My ancestors were present on that occasion and were not Royalists either, and it has come down to me by word of mouth from my ancestors who were there at that time." He said, "Is that so?" Said I, "Yes sir, that's so, and I know what I am talking about." Said he, "That's very interesting. I have an engagement at quarter past ten and it is now twenty minutes past so I must leave you; I will see you at some future day. Good morning;" since which time I have not seen him to talk over Revolutionary matters.

Now I suppose that I had interviews with two fair samples of these doubters or skeptics, one a German whose ancestors had probably never heard of America, the other a Cambridge man, but one whose ancestors were Royalists and undoubtedly were at the time cooped up in Boston and trying to get a safe passage to Halifax, or some other congenial place.

There are three questions which I wish to ask these doubters.

The first question is this:—Were your ancestors among the earliest settlers of Cambridge, and if not when did they first come to Cambridge?

My second question:—Did any of your ancestors live in Cambridge in 1775?

My third question:—Were any of your ancestors present on Cambridge Common, July 3, 1775?

Now as I wish to have them answer my questions I am perfectly willing to have them ask me the same ones and I will tell you my answers. In answer to my first question I would say:—On my mother's side one of my ancestors was Ann Errington; she came from New Castle upon Tyne. She was a widow, and with her daughter, Rebecca, settled in Cambridge in 1635. Rebecca married John Watson, who came to Cambridge about 1650, and from that family I get my first name. Three generations after, her descendant, Abraham Watson, had a daughter Sarah Watson; she married Christopher Grant of Watertown and from that family I get my middle name. Abraham Watson lived about where is now the corner of Massachusetts Avenue and Cogswell Avenue. He was a surgeon in Colonel Thomas Gardner's Regiment and took an active part in the Battle of Lexington and the Battle of Bunker Hill. After the Battle of Lexington his house was turned into a hospital for the wounded soldiers. He served through the war as Captain. On my father's side, the Cutter branch, the immigrant ancestor was Elizabeth Cutter, widow, and her two sons, William and Richard and daughter Barbara. They came from New Castle upon Tyne and settled in Cambridge in 1638. I am a descendant of Richard. In 1640 the family lived on the corner of Dunster and Winthrop Streets. In 1641 Richard was admitted freeman, and in 1643 he joined the Artillery Company of Boston as a Train Band Captain and since 1638 the Cutter family has always been represented in Cambridge, the tenth generation being now represented by my little grandson.

The daughter, Barbara, married Elijah Corlet, who was the first grammar school teacher in Cambridge. His school was on Dunster Street on land owned by President Dunster of Harvard College. The building was called very large and was built to supply the needs for many years; it was about 18 x 30 and two stories high. I might add here that one of my ancestors on my mother's side was Ezekiel Cheever, the first schoolmaster of Chelsea and one of the earliest masters of the Boston Latin School. Cotton Mather, one of Master Cheever's favorite scholars, says in his "Poetical Essay on the Memory of Ezekiel Cheever"—

"Tis Corlet's pains and Cheever's, we must own,
That thou New England, art not Sythia grown."

On my father's mother's side, the Locke family. William Locke came from Stepney Parish, London, and settled in Cambridge in 1634. That family is represented in the Chapter not only by the Cutters but by Mr. Marrett.

We all know that some of these old dates are a little hazy; the word "about" is very frequently used, but this I do know, in the oldest burying ground in Cambridge—the one on the corner of Massachusetts Avenue and Garden Street—on the oldest headstone in that ground is this inscription: "Here lies ye body of Ann Errington, aged 77 years; Died Dec. 25, 1653," and on the second oldest headstone "Here lies ye body of Elizabeth Cutter, wife to Richard Cutter, aged about 42 years; Died March 5, 1662." On another, "Here lies the body of Richard Cutter; Died June 16, 1693." On another, "Rebecca Watson, wife to John Watson; Died Nov. 11, 1690." On another, "John Watson, aged 92; Died May 20, 1711." I have answered my first question.

And now we come to the second question:—Did any of your ancestors live in Cambridge in 1775? I have already told you that Abraham Watson did. A person has, or has had, four great-grandfathers, no more or no less; that is the quota. My four great-grandfathers were living in 1775, namely, Ammi Cutter and Samuel Locke on my father's side, and Christopher Grant and Joshua Cheever on my mother's side. They were all in the Battle of Lexington and several served in the Battle of Bunker Hill. Ammi Cutter lived in Cambridge, Samuel Locke lived in Cambridge, Christopher Grant lived in Watertown and Joshua Cheever lived in Chelsea. My descent from them was as follows:—

Ammi Cutter had a son Ephraim and Samuel Locke had a daughter Deborah; Ephraim Cutter married Deborah Locke and among their numerous children was a son Samuel Locke Cutter, who was my father. Christopher Grant had a son Abraham and Joshua Cheever had a daughter Margaret; Abraham Grant married Margaret Cheever, and among their children was one Ann Maria Grant who married Samuel Locke Cutter and was my mother. I have answered my second question.

Now we come to the third question:—Were any of your ancestors present on Cambridge Common, July 3, 1775?

Now I come to family tradition and I must say that I have not the first particle of proof of what I shall tell you. I must "tell you he story as it was told to me." We must remember that Cambridge was one of the hottest of hot beds of the Revolution. I often, when a boy, heard the old people of Menotomy tell about what was done there after the Declaration of Independence. The people gathered together everything they could find which referred in any way to Royalty, documents of all kinds, public records, coats of arms, and anything that was combustible and made a big bonfire of them on the Common. An old farmer named Cutter would not allow anything that was imported to be brought on to his farm. If he wanted cloth for clothes, he made it from wool raised on the farm; boots and shoes were made from hides from his own cattle. When he wanted sugar and molasses he used maple sugar and maple syrup. If he wanted a smoke the bowl of his pipe was made from a shell which he got down on Chelsea Beach; the stem was made from a piece of alder.

I have in my hand a letter. It was written by the only living representative in our families of my father's and mother's generation, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Grant Morse, my mother's sister. She was born in Cambridge, educated in Cambridge and lived in Cambridge until her marriage with Mr. Morse of New York. She is now about eighty-five years old. I will read the letter.

15 Arnold Park,

MY DEAR NEPHEW,

I am surprised that the old Elm' Tree, which has the tablet commemorating the time, and the place, where Washington first took command of the American Army, should be arraigned.

In my childhood, when driving past it, with my father, and again, years after with your mother, the event was remembered and spoken of. Beside, the community spoke of the same with assurance; with no thought of questioning; and I have never heard anything different until now.

Please write me again about it.

Affectionately,

Aunt Mary.

I now ask you to go back with me to the year 1844, sixty years ago, about half way back to the time of the Revolution. I name 1844 because my mother died Sept. 30th of that year, and what I shall tell you happened before that time, but the matter has been brought up a great many times since by my father. At that time I was a boy almost seven years old. We lived on Prospect Street, Cambridgeport, in a house built by my mother's father in 1805. The family consisted of my father, mother and three boys. I was the youngest. It was customary for us almost every pleasant Sunday and holiday afternoon to drive up to West Cambridge to see our relations. (Now you may ask if our relations did not come to see us?) I should certainly say they did, but if they all came at the same time, and each one brought his or her entire family, our little house lot of 10,000 feet would not have held them, to say nothing of the house itself. Now to show you the number of our relatives I will merely say, that when my ancestor, John Cutter died, he left eight surviving children, sixty-eight grandchildren, one hundred and fifteen great-grandchildren—three of the fifth generation. One of his children was my Revolutionary ancestor, who was the happy father of twenty-one children. His son, Ephraim was the father of fourteen children of whom my father was one.

After making our call upon our relatives in West Cambridge, we would drive over to what the older people called Flob eend, or Flob end, or Flob for short, now a part of Belmont. Then we would call upon more relatives. After making our calls there we would drive across to Concord Turnpike, go down past Fresh Pond into Garden Street and were obliged to pass under the Washington Elm. At that time the Washington Elm was a magnificent tree; it was not the tallest tree in the neighborhood, but it was the most spreading. Its branches covered the entire street from fence to fence and it was impossible to drive through the street without passing under it. Look at it as it stands today, its trunk seamed, its branches cut off, and yet it almost fills the street. As we passed under it my father and my mother would say, "Children, this is the Washington Elm; under it Washington took command of the army in 1775. Always remember it. We were told so by our parents and they were told so by their fathers, who were here at the time. This is historic ground."

Gentlemen, I hold in my hand a document. It is not documentary evidence that "under this tree Washington first took command of the American Army," but coming down to me from Revolutionary times it is almost as good. This is a document issued from Washington's Headquarters, July 10, 1775, only seven days after Washington took command of the army. It was issued by Horatio Gates, Adjutant-General, to a commissioned officer of the Massachusetts Bay forces ordering him to immediately recruit a company for those forces and giving him instructions whom he should recruit. It was issued to Lieutenant Christopher Grant of Lieutenant-Colonel Bond's Regiment. I will read the document.

"Instructions for the Officers of the several Regiments of the Massachusetts Bay Forces, who are immediately to go upon the Recruiting Service.

"You are not to Enlist any Deserter from the Ministerial Army, nor any Stroller, Negro or Vagabond, or Person suspected of being an Enemy to the Liberty of America, nor any under Eighteen Years of Age.

"As the Cause is the best that can engage Men of Courage and Principle to take up Arms; so it is expected that none but such will be accepted by the Recruiting Officer; The Pay, Provision, etc., being so ample, it is not doubted but the Officers sent upon this Service, will without Delay complete their respective Corps, and March the Men forthwith to Camp.

"You are not to Enlist any Person who is not an American born unless such Person has a wife and Family, and is a settled Resident in this Country.

"The Persons you Enlist, must be provided with good and complete Arms.

"Given at the Head Quarters at Cambridge, this 10th Day of July, 1775.

HORATIO GATES, Adjutant General

To Lieut Christ. Grant of Lieut Coll Bonds Regiment."

Christopher Grant of the 18th day of October 1786 was commissioned Colonel of the First Regiment of Militia in the County of Middlesex by his Excellency Governor James Bowdoin. I have in my hand that commission which I will read.

"Commonwealth
of Massachusetts
(SEAL)

By his Excellency
James Bowdoin Esq.
Governor of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts

To Christopher Grant Esq Greeting—

You being appointed Colonel of the first Regiment of Militia in the County of Middlesex.

By virtue of the power vested in me, I do by these Presents (reposing special Trust and Confidence in your Loyalty, Courage, and good Conduct) commission you accordingly.

You are therefore Carefully and diligently to discharge the Duty of a Colonel in leading, ordering and exercising said Regiment in Arms, both Inferior Officers and Soldiers; and to keep them in good Order and Discipline. And they are hereby commanded to obey you as their Colonel, and you are yourself to observe and follow such Orders and Instructions as you shall from Time to Time receive from me or your Superior Officers.

Given under my Hand and the Seal of the said Commonwealth the Eighteenth Day of October in the year of our Lord 1786 and in the eleventh year of the Independence of the United States of America.

By his Excellency's Command
John Avery, Jr Secretary."

Would Lieutenant Christopher Grant, who according to my family traditions, was present on Cambridge Common when Washington first took command of the American Army, and who was afterwards appointed Colonel of the First Regiment of Militia, have pointed out to his son, Abraham Grant, that tree as the tree under which Washington first took command of the American Army if it were not so? Would that son, Abraham Grant, have pointed out that same tree to his daughter, Ann Maria Grant, if it were not so? Would Ann Maria Grant Cutter, my mother, have pointed out that tree to me if it were not so? I might say the same of Ammi Cutter, Captain Samuel Locke and Joshua Cheever, but it would be only cumulative evidence.

Gentlemen, to our ancestors that tree and that ground were not only historic, they were sacred, and should be the same to us and to our descendants, and when that noble old tree shall have fallen, as fall it must soon by the ravages of time, I hope and trust that a monument will be placed on the exact spot upon which it now stands and on that monument shall be this inscription, "On this spot stood the tree under which Washington first took command of the American Army, July 3, 1775." And I hope and trust that monument shall stand as long as this, our country, which our ancestors fought for and established, shall exist.

Gentlemen, in conclusion, every word on that tablet is true.

THE WINTER AT VALLEY FORGE

Compiled by William F. Emerson

Longmeadow, Mass.

The winter at Valley Forge was in a large sense the turning point of the Revolutionary War. During the season of 1777 the British had been busy trying to obtain and control New York state and the Hudson River. If successful, the Colonies would have been effectually divided in territory and might have been subdued in detail. The British had possession of New York City and Newport.

Their endeavors in the North were unsuccessful and on Oct. 17 Burgoyne's army surrendered. After that a small portion of Gates's force returned to Washington's army.

Sir William Howe, with a large force and a fleet of three hundred sail, had sailed south July 23, with destination unknown, and had turned into Chesapeake Bay, intending an attack upon Philadelphia. On Aug. 25 it anchored in Elk River, fifty-four miles from Philadelphia. On Aug. 24 Washington led the Continental Army, decorated with sprays of green (as an attempt at a decorative uniform), through the crowded streets of Philadelphia. The next day he reached Wilmington just as the British anchored with the purpose of marching upon Philadelphia by an easy inland route thro' an open country which had no difficult passes, no rivers but fordable ones, and was inhabited chiefly by Royalists and Quakers. When Sullivan brought up his division the American army was about half as numerous as the British.

After various delays Howe's forces got under way for Philadelphia, and on Sept. 11 the two armies met at Chadd's Ford on the Brandywine River, where Washington planned to divide Howe's army. Thro' the misunderstanding of his orders (as he said) by Sullivan, a bungle ensued and the day's battle resulted in a defeat for Washington, whose forces lost about one thousand. The British lost about six hundred, of whom fifty-eight were officers.

The British intended to shut Washington in between the rivers, but he took care to hold the roads to the south as well as the north and west. But on Sept. 19 Gen. Gray surprised Gen. Wayne and drove him from his position. The way was then clear to occupy Philadelphia, which Cornwallis proceeded to do on Sept. 26, Congress having had notice and gone to Lancaster.

Howe crossed the Schuylkill at Fatland Ford below Valley Forge on Sept. 23. On October 4 Washington attacked Howe's forces (having marched from Skippack Creek) and the battle of Germantown ensued. It was an attempt by Washington to surprise the British forces but owing to various causes was a failure. The American loss was eleven hundred killed, wounded and prisoners, and the British five hundred and twenty-one.

The Delaware River had been obstructed by chevaux-de-frise by the Americans. Howe, on Oct. 4, 8 and 22, made various attempts to open the river to navigation; on October 18 the news of Burgoyne's surrender reached the American camp.

It took Howe's forces until Nov. 16 to take the defences at Mud Island on the Delaware River, and some desperate fighting was done.

Howe now retired to Philadelphia. The net results of the season's campaign were the cities of New York and Philadelphia.

With quickness of eye Washington selected in the woods of White Marsh strong ground for an encampment, and there within fourteen miles of Philadelphia awaited the enemy, of whose movements he received exact and timely intelligence. On the severely cold night of the 4th of December the British, fourteen thousand strong, marched out to attack the American lines. Before day-break on the 5th, their advance guard halted on a ridge beyond Chestnut Hill, eleven miles from Philadelphia, and at seven their main body formed in one line, with a few regiments as reserves. The Americans occupied thickly wooded hills, with a morass and a brook in their front. Opposite the British left wing a breastwork defended the only point where the brook could be easily forded. At night the British force rested on their arms. Washington passed the hours in strengthening his position; and though, according to De Kalb, who was present, he had but seven thousand really effective men, he wished for an engagement. Near the end of another day Howe marched back to Germantown, and on the next, as if intending a surprise, suddenly returned upon the American left, which he made preparations to assail. Washington delivered in person to each brigade his orders on the manner of receiving their enemy, exhorting to a reliance on the bayonet. All day long, and until eight o'clock in the evening, Howe kept up his reconnoitering, but found the American position everywhere strong by nature and by art. On the 8th, just after noon, the British suddenly marched by the shortest road to Philadelphia. Their loss in the expedition exceeded one hundred. The rest of the season Howe made no excursions except for food and forage; and Washington had no choice but to seek winter quarters for his suffering soldiers. (Bancroft 209-210.)

Not the least difficult of Washington's achievements was this same refusal to come down and fight Howe at White Marsh. He had been anxious to do so sometime before, for it was part of his nature to fight hard and at every opportunity. Yet when Howe marched against him at this juncture he refused, and the strength of his position was such that the British felt it would be certain defeat to attack. (Lodge, p. 300.)

As the season was advancing, and the Americans were in no condition to keep the field, it was decided to go into winter quarters at Valley Forge, on the west side of the Schuylkill, twenty miles above Philadelphia, where the Valley Creek empties into the river. The surrounding hills were covered with woods and presented an inhospitable appearance. The choice was severely criticised, and De Kalb described it as a wilderness. But the position was central and easily defended. The army arrived there about the middle of December, and the erection of huts began.

They were built of logs, and were fourteen by fifteen feet each. The windows were covered with oiled paper, and the openings between the logs closed with clay. The huts were arranged in streets, giving the place the appearance of a city. It was the first of the year, however, before they were occupied, and previous to that the sufferings of the army had become great. Although the weather was intensely cold, the men were obliged to work at the building with nothing to support life but flour mixed with water, which they baked into cakes at the open fires. "My brigade is out of provisions, nor can the commissary obtain any meat," wrote one on the 22nd of December. "Three days successively have we been destitute of bread," said another the same day, "and two days we have been entirely without meat." Soap, vinegar and other articles necessary for the health of the men were never furnished, and so imperfectly did the clothier general perform his duties, that many of the men were without shirts, and hundreds were confined to the hospitals and farmhouses for want of shoes. Blankets and proper coverings were so scarce that numbers, after toiling during the day, were obliged to sit by the fires all night to keep from freezing. By the 23rd of December, two thousand eight hundred and ninety-eight men were unfit for duty, because they were barefoot and otherwise naked. The horses died of starvation by hundreds, and the men were obliged to haul their own provisions and firewood. As straw could not be found to protect the men from the cold ground, sickness spread through their quarters with fearful rapidity. "The unfortunate soldiers," wrote Lafayette, in after years, "were in want of everything; they had neither coats, hats, shirts nor shoes; their feet and their legs froze till they became black, and it was often necessary to amputate them." At times, however, it seemed as if the forbearance of the men was exhausted, and that the war would end in mutiny.

While the country around Valley Forge was so impoverished by the military operations of the previous summer as to make it impossible for it to support the army, the sufferings of the latter were chiefly owing to the inefficiency of Congress. That body met at Lancaster after leaving Philadelphia, and at once adjourned to York, where its sessions were continued. But it in no way equalled the Congresses which had preceded it. Many of the members entertained the widespread dread of a standing army, and refused to follow the advice given by Washington for the relief of the men. Then the abler men found in the legislatures of their respective states more promising fields for the active; Franklin was in France. (Winsor, 389-393.)

It is difficult for us to realize the circumstances of the American army. Recruited from the various colonies, mostly on short terms, zealous of service under their own officers, when their time was out they went home, and when they went each took his musket with him. Of the terms of service of the Revolutionary soldiers whose blood is mine, one served three months and two shorter terms, the three others short terms whose time was covered by days or weeks.

Until the summer of 1777 military affairs had been superintended by a Congressional committee. In July, 1777, it was settled that in the following October a new executive board of war should be formed of five persons not members of Congress. The new board consisted of Gens. Gates, Conway, (Insp. Genl.), Mifflin, (the head), Wilkinson, (Secy.), and one other man.

While Washington was fighting the enemy and famine and pestilence, he had as well to maintain his position with Congress and the country. Congress was carping and fault-finding and while leaders like Samuel and John Adams and Richard Henry Lee criticised, lesser men rebelled and plotted against the Commander in Chief. General Mifflin, instead of performing the duties of Quarter Master General, spent his time intriguing with General Conway, (a military adventurer, an Irishman with a French experience) and practicing on General Gates (who as the ranking general at Saratoga had gained honor and prestige by the desperate valor of such men as Benedict Arnold) whose ambition led him to aspire to Washington's position.

These men and others of their like (called the Conway Cabal) used all the means at their command to influence Congress and to pull down Washington with, as it then seemed, success, but as time went on Washington's friends rallied about him, the ambitious designs of the Cabal were understood, its members fell to quarreling with each other, and the intriguers and their party went to pieces.

Wilkinson resigned, Mifflin was definitely put under Washington's orders, Gates was sent to his command in the North, and Conway resigning in a pet, found his resignation suddenly accepted.

Washington says: "I can assure these gentlemen that it is a much easier and less distressing thing to draw remonstrances in a comfortable room by a good fireside, than to occupy a cold, bleak hill, and sleep under frost and snow, without clothes or blankets. However, although they seem to have little feeling for the naked and distressed soldiers, I feel superabundantly for them, and from my soul I pity their miseries, which it is neither in my power to relieve nor prevent." (Partly Lodge.)

Washington (as he had to) levied on the country around for such things as he could get (see his proclamation in regard to grain) while he protested against so doing as against public policy.

Finally sentiment was settled in Washington's favor, Greene became Quarter Master General, and then the clothing and the food came too. The weather began to soften and the days to lengthen. Washington had not only held his men together, but he had finally made his army. Excellent fighting material he always had, and he had been forming it fast under the strain of marches, retreats and battles. But it still lacked the organization and drill which were possessed by the enemy. These last Washington gave it under all the miseries and sufferings of Valley Forge. Good fortune had brought him a man fit for this work above almost any other, in the person of Baron Von Steuben, a Prussian soldier, a distinguished officer of the Seven Years' War, trained in the school of Frederick, the most brilliant commander of his time.

Knowing no English, Steuben took with him as secretary and interpreter the youthful Pierre Duponceau, afterwards famous as a lawyer, and still more famous as a philologist. One day, on shipboard, this gay young Frenchman laid a wager that he would kiss the first Yankee girl he should meet on landing. So as they came ashore at Portsmouth on a frosty December morning, he gravely stepped up to a pretty New Hampshire maiden, who was passing by, and told her that before leaving his native land to fight for American freedom he had taken a vow to ask, in earnest of victory, a kiss from the first lady he should meet. The prayer of chivalry found favor in the eyes of the fair Puritan, and the token of success was granted. On arriving at York, the German general was received by Congress with distinguished honors; and this time the confidence given to a trained European soldier turned out to be well deserved. Throughout the war Steuben proved no less faithful than capable. He came to feel a genuine love for his adopted country, and after the war was over, retired to New York state, where that commonwealth presented him a farm of sixteen thousand acres. Here he lived the life of a country gentleman till 1794.

Disregarding the English prejudice which looked upon the drilling of soldiers as work fit only for sergeants, he took musket in hand and showed what was to be done. Alert and untiring, he worked from morning till night in showing the men how to advance, retreat, or change front, without falling into disorder,—how to perform, in short, all the rapid and accurate movements for which the Prussian army had become so famous. It was a revelation to the American troops. He had a choleric temper, which was part of his overflowing vigor, and sometimes, when drilling an awkward squad, he would exhaust his stock of French and German oaths, and shout for his aid to come and curse the blockheads in English. In May, 1778, after three months of such work, Steuben was appointed Inspector General of the army, with the rank and pay of Major General. The reforms which he introduced were so far-reaching that after a year they were said to have saved more than eight hundred thousand French livres to the United States.

No accounts had been kept of arms and accouterments, and owing to the careless good nature which allowed every recruit to carry home his musket as a keepsake, there had been a loss of from five thousand to eight thousand muskets annually. During the first year of Steuben's inspectorship less than twenty muskets were lost. Half of the arms at Valley Forge were found without bayonets by Steuben. The American soldier had no faith in this weapon, because he did not know how to use it; when he did not throw it away, he adapted it to culinary purposes, holding on its point the beef which he roasted before his camp-fire. Yet in little more than a year after Steuben's arrival we shall see an American column, without firing a gun, storm the works at Stony Point in one of the most spirited bayonet charges known to history.

It was Steuben also who first taught the American army to understand the value of an efficient staff. The want of such had been severely felt at the battle of Brandywine. Steuben proved himself an apt scholar as well as teacher. There was one lesson which Europe now learned from America. In the fight with the Indians, it had been found desirable to act in loose column, which could easily separate to fall behind trees and reunite at brief notice. Reduced to scientific shape by Steuben, and absorbed by Napoleon, these light infantry tactics came to play a great part on the European battlefields of the nineteenth century.

The British army's peaceful sojourn in the town from September 26, 1777 to June 18, 1778, was a source of great enjoyment and an unrivalled opportunity for social advancement to the loyalists. It was the harvest of their lives. Even a wicked rebellion could have advantages. One of the loyalist ladies has left some enthusiastic and rather good verses on the delights of that winter:

O halcyon days, forever dear,
When all were happy, all were gay;
When winter did like spring appear,
And January fair as May!

Then laughing Sol went gaily down,
Still brighter in the morn to rise,
And fondly looking o'er the town,
On Britain's ensign beamed his eyes.

Sons of the American Revolution

Then all confessed the valiant knight
 Had learnt in camps the art to please,
 Respectful, witty, yet polite;
 Uniting fancy, grace and ease.

Still danced the frolic hours away,
 While heart and feet alike were light.
 Still hope announced each smiling day,
 And mirth and music crowned each night.

It was a strange scene in the good old Quaker town with the rebel prisoners eating rats in the Walnut street jail, while the commissary of prisoners grew rich, and extravagance, speculation, gambling and European indifference to morals filled the respectable, plain brick houses. A Hessian officer held the bank at the game of faro and made a considerable fortune by ruining young Englishmen, many of whom were obliged to sell their commissions and go home penniless. The officers made no attempt to keep their mistresses in the background. One of them drove in her carriage with footmen up and down lines at a review of the troops, dressed in a costume that was a feminine imitation of the uniform of her paramour's regiment. (Fisher, pp. 347-348.)

And now we must prepare to take leave of our hero, Sir William Howe, the conqueror of America. His resignation was accepted. And why not? His work was done. He could do no more either for the Whigs or the Americans, and he might as well return to his place in Parliament and Almack's. He wished to defend himself in his seat in Parliament as had Burgoyne. His career and the gayety of his sojourn in Philadelphia reached their climax on May 18, 1778, when a magnificent fête was given by subscription. Major André wrote the play and invitations. Miss Whitten, afterwards Arnold's wife, was the belle of the season. The play was a mock tournament, the ladies' costumes Turkish, the supper, dance, decorations and fireworks immense.

So the winter had passed. The members present in Congress were sometimes only nine, rarely seventeen. Franklin, Jefferson, Rutledge, Jay and Adams were elsewhere.

When the news of Burgoyne's surrender reached France that country entered into an alliance with the United States, Feb. 6, 1778, and the fleet under D'Estaing was sent to aid the Colonies.

Congress raised large amounts of money on the credit of Robert Morris and by a forced draft replenished the army.

It came to be seen that (as Franklin had said) Philadelphia had captured Howe, and in the spring he was ordered to New York. He sent the loyalists by vessel while he with his wagon train marched across New Jersey with results as we know. His army would probably have been captured or destroyed at Monmouth had it not been for the mismanagement or treason of Gen. Charles Lee.

In this campaign we see the results of the winter's training of the American troops.

In closing, it is interesting matter for thought what might have happened if Howe had seized the winter's opportunity to fight Washington while he was crippled by disease and want.

What might have happened if Lord Chatham had lived and undertaken the reconciliation of the Colonies?

A word in regard to the place and its present condition. Valley Forge is on the Schuylkill River at its junction with Valley Creek.

In 1893 the Pennsylvania Legislature took steps to acquire and preserve Valley Forge as a public park and historic landmark. On October 19, 1901, a monument was here unveiled by the Daughters of the Revolution in memory of the soldiers who died in camp during the winter of 1777-78.

The entire field at Valley Forge is practically the same today as it was when evacuated by Washington in 1778. The trenches thrown up by the Continentals may still be seen. The old stone house which Washington used for his headquarters is standing and is in a good state of preservation. In 1903 the matter of making Valley Forge a state park was again taken up by the legislature of Pennsylvania and the sum of $74,500 was appropriated for the purpose. To the two hundred and ten acres already owned by the state eight hundred acres were added.

RAISING THE FIRST AMERICAN UNION FLAG

By the courtesy of Harper Brothers we have the privilege of using Mr. Clyde O. De Land's (Philadelphia) painting of the "Raising of the First American Union Flag" for the frontispiece of this volume and the following description is from Lossing's Field Book of the Revolution:

"On the first of January, 1776, the new Continental Army was organized, and on that day the Union flag of thirteen stripes was unfurled for the first time in the American Camp, Somerville, Mass. On that day the King's speech was received in Boston and copies of it were sent to Washington who, in a letter to Joseph Reed, written Jan. 4, 1776, said, 'The speech I send you. A volume of them were sent out by the Boston gentry, and farcial enough, we gave great joy to them without knowing or intending it, for on that day, the day which gave being to the new army, but before the proclamation came to hand, we had hoisted the Union flag, in compliment to the United Colonies. But behold! it was received in Boston as a token of the deep impression the speech had made upon us, and as a signal of submission. So we hear by a person out of Boston last night. By this time, I presume, they begin to think it strange that we have not made a formal surrender of our lines.' The flag bore the device of the English Union which is composed of the cross of St. George, to denote England, and St. Andrew's cross, in the form of an X to denote Scotland. It must be remembered that at this time the American Congress had not declared their independence and that even yet the Americans prof-fered their warmest loyalty to British justice, when it should redress their grievances."

In Memoriam

At the Washington birthday meeting of the Society, February 22, 1905, the following resolution, offered by General Appleton on the death of Hon. John Whitehead, President of the New Jersey Society, S. A. R., who died February 14, 1905, was unanimously adopted by a rising vote:

Resolved, That in the death of John Whitehead this Society loses one who realized the value to this Nation in a strong union of the descendants from Revolutionary ancestors under the principles so well laid down in our Constitution, which he is so largely responsible for. We mourn his loss, together with his compatriots of the New Jersey Society, and extend our expressions of sympathy to his family.
